

Utah Legislature

OFFICIAL CITATION RECOGNIZING

Nathan Cooper and the Province of Alberta

The Utah Legislature recognizes Nathan Cooper for his exemplary leadership, integrity, and dedication to public service, and for his meaningful contributions to the people of Alberta and the broader community.

As Alberta's representative in Washington, DC, Nathan Cooper plays a vital role in strengthening relationships between Alberta, Utah, and the United States. Through his commitment to principled governance, collaboration, and public service, he has helped advance shared economic and policy priorities, including a strong bilateral trade relationship valued between $1.2 and $1.5 billion annually. This partnership, much of which moves along the I-15/CANAMEX Corridor connecting Alberta's energy sector to Utah's refining and distribution hubs, supports an estimated 14,000 Utah jobs and contributes meaningfully to regional economic growth.

The Province of Alberta, Canada, is recognized for its enduring spirit, economic strength, and commitment to opportunity. Alberta and Utah share deep historical and cultural ties dating back to the late nineteenth century, when Latter-day Saint settlers from Utah established communities in southern Alberta, creating lasting family, cultural, and institutional connections. Today, Alberta and its people continue to contribute meaningfully at both the national and international levels through leadership in energy, natural resources, innovation, and trade, serving as a model of resilience, progress, and community stewardship.

Now, therefore, be it known on this 10th day of February 2026, the Utah Legislature recognizes Nathan Cooper and the Province of Alberta, Canada, for their exemplary leadership, enduring values, and meaningful contributions to public service, civic engagement, and the advancement of their communities.
